Executing on your Cloud Security Architecture Plan Through a Path to Success

BENEFITS OF WORKING WITH OPTIV:

Quickly Adapt to Changes in Environment: Proactively adapt the cloud security architecture plan to address unforeseen changes in the technology landscape.

Execute the Plan Quickly and Efficiently: Transition smoothly to the build and run phases of the cloud security program without delays from hiring and training new talent.

Expand Your Team Without Incurring Overhead: Integrate Optiv's cloud security architecture team as a natural extension of your team without the long-term cost ramifications.

Access to Industry Advisors: Oversight and guidance from the larger Optiv cloud security team helps to ensure a path to success for your cloud security program.

Challenge

Security and lack of resources and expertise are the top two cloud challenges often cited in analyst reports. According to the RightScale 2016 State of the Cloud Report, 32 percent of cloud users find lack of resources and expertise to be their chief challenge when embracing and consuming cloud services. This validates the argument that even though you may have a cloud security program plan today, staying on top of a constantly changing technology stack with the same limited resources you already have is a tall order.

Solution

Effectively executing on a cloud security architecture program requires the same level of perseverance invested in the strategy planning phase. The Optiv embedded cloud security architecture team ensures that the same security experts who facilitated the cloud security strategy and architecture executes the plan to fruition as integrated members of your team. By having a single source carry out a comprehensive cloud security program from planning to implementation and management, you establish a consistency in taking the security vision and strategy to completion. With oversight from the Optiv cloud security team, you also have the benefit of getting alignment on industry best practices and expertise guidance throughout the process. The result is a fully-realized cloud security program executed to plan in a timely manner, without adding strain to your existing resources.
