Hey, you’re from Earth. You’ve been around the block and know it’s important to secure devices. They’ve been multiplying like rabbits… and the bad guys know that all too well. Every device presents a potential vector of attack, both overt and subtle. Optiv gets it, too. Check it out:

Case In Point

A financial services client finalized a large acquisition that doubled the size of their workforce. Doubled it. Like, overnight. That’s lightning-fast expansion.

While quickly merging applications and systems, they suddenly ran headlong into the need to deploy a remote workforce. On that front, employee productivity was seriously hindered due to outages and slowdowns associated with the existing VPN solution and an insufficient number of licenses.

Optiv quickly worked with the client’s security team to determine the best approach for expanding and deploying a Zero Trust solution for all employees. We immediately enabled their workforce to securely work from home and improve their long-term security posture by enhancing their ability to improve data security, minimize lateral access, reduce threats of ransomware attacks, and shrink their attack surface.

Boom. Just like that.

This certainly wasn’t a one-time thing— we can do it for you, too. Optiv can be your greatest defense when you need it the most.
